Leave Policy

In this policy, we explain our provisions for your time off. We include types of leave and holidays.

Paid time off (PTO)/ Vacation Policy

Employees are entitled to their Vacation (paid time off). The number of vacation days allocated to each employee are documented in their employment agreement.

PTO (Paid Time Off) days are calculated on a pro rata basis. Your PTO accrual begins the day you join our company.

For Example: If employees are entitled to 15 days of PTO (Vacation) and if you joined our company in the month of September you are entitled for 5 days of PTO till December. (which equates to 1.25 days / month). This number will change depending on the PTO agreed upon on your employment Agreement.

PTO days that are not utilized will NOT be rolled over past the calendar year. We encourage you to use your time off throughout the year.

If an employee decides to take time off that exceeds his/her allocated PTO days, he/she will have to take prior authorization from their manager and HR. Once approved, the employee can take the time off with loss of pay. Employees will not be allowed to use the forecasted vacation for the year ahead towards additional days off.

All employees will need to get prior authorization from their immediate manager to avail the days off. All vacation approvals are subject to the discretion of the manager. PTO requests must be sent to the manager and copied to the HR. Once the HRM tool is updated, all PTO requests will be managed by the HRM tool.

Employees need to plan and communicate all project impacts with their manager. Employees are required to communicate their unavailability to the clients once their vacations are approved.

The employee is responsible for managing their vacation. It becomes challenging for the manager to approve vacations if there are multiple requests from employees for the same time period. It is therefore encouraged to apply for vacation well in advance.

It is highly recommended to work closely with your manager to plan your vacation.

It is important to note that all last-minute vacation requests can be hard to manage for business continuity.

If the employee leaves the organization or is terminated from the organization, the additional vacation days, if taken, will be deducted from the final payout to the employee.

As part of our Leave policy and to ensure smooth coordination across teams, all employees are required to complete the following steps when applying for and proceeding on Paid Time Off (PTO):

- 1. Update Your Outlook Calendars

Block your leave period as “Out of Office” on both your GNAPI and any applicable client mailboxes, based on the projects you are currently involved in. This helps maintain visibility for colleagues and managers when planning meetings.

- 2. Set Your Microsoft Teams Status

Update your Microsoft Teams status to “Out of Office” for the duration of your leave to clearly reflect your unavailability.

These actions are integral to maintaining effective communication and minimizing disruptions during your absence. We request that these updates be made prior to the start of your PTO.

For any questions or assistance with these steps, please feel free to reach out to your manager.

Sick leave cannot be considered as vacation time off and should be only availed for sickness.

Marriage Leave

Gnapi Technologies offers up to 3 paid leaves for their employee's wedding.

Parental leave (For Indian Employees)

Caring for a newborn is an exciting time for parents. We want to support new mothers and fathers in their first months of parenthood with paternity and maternity leave.

Paternity Leave (For Indian Employees)

- Up to 5 paid leave for all new parents will be available 2 months before the baby's arrival and within the first 3 months of the baby's arrival.

Maternity Leave (For Indian Employees)

Maternity leave from work is crucial for ensuring job security and protecting the economic rights of the female workforce. It is a much-needed facility provided by employers that allows women to perform their maternal duties without any stress or work pressure.

These paid leaves are granted to pregnant or expecting women employees by Gnapi Technologies to ensure the good health and well-being of themselves and their newborns.

Maternity leave is a type of long-term paid leave granted to a pregnant employee in an organization.

All pregnant female employees are entitled to a maternity leave of 26 weeks for their first and second child. Out of these, they can take up to 8 weeks of leave before the delivery of their child.

For the third or subsequent pregnancy, expecting mothers are eligible to take maternity leave of 12 weeks.

Adopting mothers are eligible for a 12-week maternity leave, which starts from the day their newborn is handed over to them.

In case of medical termination or accidental miscarriage, a woman employee can take 12 weeks of maternity leave. However, in this case, medical proof of miscarriage is required.

Besides, additional paid leaves can also be granted based on the health and situation of the mother and her baby.
